

Press release 16 May 2011

Media & Learning Brussels 2011 call for contributions closes 1 June 2011!

The Media & Learning Conference is aimed at policy makers and practitioners who want to find out more about how media can be used to enhance learning for people of every age. Interested individuals, project teams, institutions and organisations are invited to send in their programme contributions for presentations and demonstrations, the closing date for submissions is 1 June 2011. To download the contribution forms, go to <http://www.media-and-learning.eu/contribute>.

Take part in the Media & Learning Conference for free!

Through a special recommendation offer, participants can receive up to 100% refunding of their registration fee. For more information, see <http://www.media-and-learning.eu/attend-for-free>. Online registration now also includes credit card payment, see <http://www.media-and-learning.eu/registration>.

LinkedIn  If you are a LinkedIn member, you can RSVP to our LinkedIn event: <http://events.linkedin.com/Media-Learning-Brussels-2011/pub/550850>

Join the online community of practice on media and learning

The Media & Learning Community has just been launched, where anyone interested in media-based learning, media literacy, policy and development can connect with each other, join and start discussions as well as find and share resources in the community resources database. To explore and join the community, visit <http://www.media-and-learning.eu/community>.

Adobe is official sponsor of Media & Learning Conference 2011

The conference organisation is delighted to announce the support by Adobe and would like to thank Adobe for the continued support as sponsor of this event.

To find out more about the Media & Learning Conference, visit the conference website here: <http://www.media-and-learning.eu>.